A LETTER FROM A DOCTOR

1 Dear Editor,

I have been a doctor for more than twenty years. My work gives me much satisfaction, and I have an excellent relationship with most of my patients. However, my colleagues and I agree that patients' behavior can sometimes make our job difficult. I am sure that 5 in most cases, patients don't even realize that there is a problem with their behavior. I hope that reading my letter will help people understand what they should or shouldn't do when they visit their doctor.

First, make sure to come to your appointment on time. Many patients complain about long waits to see their doctor, but this is often a result of patients not coming on time.
10 One late patient can disrupt the doctor's schedule for a whole day! Even worse are the patients who make an appointment but never appear at the doctor's office. This really wastes doctors' time. If you can't keep your appointment, call the office so that someone else who needs an emergency appointment can have it instead.

Second, don't ask your doctor to diagnose you over the phone. Many patients don't 15 want to spend time and money on a doctor's visit, so they call up their doctor, describe their symptoms, and ask for a long-distance prescription. Please understand that a responsible doctor must check you before giving you a prescription.

Third, make a list of what you want to tell your doctor before your appointment. Patients who come to their doctor unprepared waste their doctor's time, and their own 20 time, too.

Most importantly, remember to thank your doctor. Every doctor needs to feel that his or her hard work is appreciated. This is what makes it possible for us to continue in our profession.

Dr. David Rieger
